Note

This reference provides the current joint data standards established under the Financial Data Transparency Act \(FDTA\)

The final joint rule postdates the original FDIS-RA draft and serves as the controlling current source for interpreting statements concerning FDTA joint data standards and their implementation.

The final joint rule:

- Establishes joint data standards intended to promote interoperability of financial regulatory data
- Takes effect on 1 October 2026
- Does not itself change existing reporting, recordkeeping, or information-collection obligations
- Does not apply the standards to particular collections of information without subsequent agency-specific rulemaking or other agency action
- Preserves agency authority to determine how applicable standards operate within the agency's statutory jurisdiction
- Permits tailoring or use of other standards where authorized by the FDTA

Statements in FDIS-RA concerning FDTA implementation, implementation timing, agency obligations, reporting systems, or application of the joint data standards require interpretation in accordance with this final joint rule.
