Note

This reference provides information concerning the Australian Securities and Investments Commission (ASIC) digital transformation initiatives related to regulatory reporting, digital services, and the modernisation of regulatory information management.

FDIS-RA uses this reference to illustrate architectural concerns involving:

- Digital regulatory reporting
- Structured information collection
- Machine-readable regulatory data
- Regulatory technology
- Automated validation and processing
- Long-term evolution of reporting environments

ASIC initiatives demonstrate the increasing reliance of regulatory agencies on digitally structured information and automated processing. These initiatives provide examples of reporting modernisation but do not define a comprehensive architecture for semantic interpretation, governance, traceability, or controlled semantic evolution.
